Dopey's Popularity Leads In Exhibit Of Disney Classic

Dopey leads the seven dwarfs in popularity with coeds at the exhibit of the original paintings used in the filming of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" being shown today in the Music room of the Union.

One hundred of these paintings on celluloid with watercolor backgrounds vividly bring back the most memorable scenes of the Walt Disney classic.

Of the 475,000 paintings made for the filming of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." all but 7,000 were destroyed These were placed on sale in many large cities and only a few paintings remain.

Dean Alvin E. Evans of the College of Law bought the first painting sold here.

Each city which was alloted a certain number of paintings found that when they were shown they were received with such enthusiasm that it was necessary to double and then tripie the number.

As it was necessary to make a drawing to show each movement of the dwarfs, Snow White, and the animals, there were numerous paintings with only a slight variation. Only the basic paintings were kept and the others destroyed.

Only Three Factors Will Offer F. D. R. Third Term Chance

Widespread Anti-New Deal Reaction In Election Presage Conditions

By ALLENBY E. WINER American participation in war, a general business "boom" by 1940, or lack of an outstanding candidate for his successor, would be the only factors instrumental in President Rooseveit's seeking a third term at the White House, in view of widespread anti-New Deal reaction indicated by last week's elections, Dr. L. H. Carter, professor of economics, said yesterday.

"These would give President Rooseveit a chance," Dr. Carter dc-clared, "but otherwise it would be unwise for him to run and he knows it. Unless one of these possibilities materializes, he would be defeated, should he decide to run." Dr. Carter attributed the Republican rise, constituting a gain of eight seats in the Senate and 81 1937. new seats in the House, besides important gubernatorial victories, to four main forces: 1. Public reaction to "revolutionary tactles" as evidenced in Michigan and elsewhere.

2. President Rooseveit's purge through many states which, on the long which is not liberal to a cerwhole, proved unsuccessful. 3. A strong vote from the middle ference in business and purely rug-weaker vote from the lower class.

November 16. Petitions must be signed by 25 students for each office and no student is allowed to sign over one petition for the same office. Sophomores must sign sophomore petitions and freshman, freshman petitions. The lists will be considered by the Men's Student Council at a meeting at 4 p. m. Wednesday in Room 20% of the Union building.

4. Business recession of August,

Though interpreted in many quarters as a setback to liberalism, Dr. Carter is of the opinion that the election returns did not indicate a flight from liberal government in the United States.

Keep Kentucky On The Airwaves

Station WHAS of Louisville is preparing its football schedule for 1939 under a new policy. a policy which offers the public a chance to name the teams it wants that station to follow

Naturally, we at the University want WHAS to carry all of the Kentucky football games next year. But such a program can be realized only if the student body, alumni, and boosters let their wishes be known to George Walsh of WHAS or to us at the Kernel office.

Although an announcement of this new policy was made in a recent "In the Control Room' column, thus far the response has been negligible. On the other hand, after the airing of the Centre-Washington and Lee game, WHAS was flooded with hundreds of letters from Centre supporters asking that their games be broadcast next year. Are we going to let Centre collège games be aired and not raise a hand to keep the University of Kentucky before the public?

The advantages a university enjoys every time its football games are broadcast is a matter of record. It would be unforgivable if the largest school in the state should lose prestige among radio listeners merely through student apathy. Write your letter now.

Still Not Enough; Take Your Test Today

Thirteen hundred is a large number and an encouraging number of students to take Wassermann tests voluntarily during the first two weeks of a campaign.

But the number is not large enough.

It is only through mass cooperation that a program such as this can accomplish its purpose. The organizations and individuals that have supported the campaign thus far have placed the stamp of "success" on the plan, but that stamp will not stick without continued coperation and concentrated effort.

We have every reason to believe that we are right. We are backed by the American School Hygiene Association, the State Health Department, leading medical authorities, the dispensary staff, outstanding members of the faculty, and over 1,300 of the student body. All that is lacking now is a vote of approval from the remainder of the students, and that vote can be counted only by means of the Wassermann.

The Public Health building will remain open for giving tests as long as students continue to show their interest in their own welfare.

Show it by taking your Wassermann today. Help make this university a leader in the fight against "moral indignation" and the idea of "shameful diseases"-attitudes which have been strong contributing factors in a death rate of its football games are broadcast is a mater ol over 100,000 every year.

Back Again, As Bad As Ever

As much as we dislike mentioning it, that old bug-a-boo is back.

Keeping off the grass shouldn't be a strenuous matter. In fact, after glancing at the slogans handed in last year, one would think that it was the simplest of procedures, and that the individual who violated the Keep-Off-The Grass creed was nothing but a thoughtless ruffian.

This year, when a student is seen "cutting across," it almost looks like premeditated grass murder. The Department of Buildings and Grounds has completed such an intelligent job in laying walks and beautifying the campus that it would seem well-nigh impossible for a "short and on grass to be found.

This year, when a student is seen "cutting across." it almost looks like premeditated grass nurder. The Department of Buildings and Grounds has completed such an intelligent job ni laving walks and beautifying the campus that 11 would seem well-high impossible for a "short cut" on grass to be found.

But evidently the solution of the matter does lie in a more thoughtful student body. Two

Behind The Eckdahl

By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

A rather nice looking boy strolled into the Union grill and looked around. His nonchalant gaze fell on four beautiful girls seated at a corner table. He walked over and spoke, took out a package of cigarettes, offered them to the young coeds thereby losing four of them. Then he took cigarette for himself. After lighting the cigarettes he was asked to join their happy throng by seating himself in a conspicuously empty chair.

Our boy friend, being a gentleman and having already noticed empty coca-cola glasses on the table, decided it would be safe to ask the girls to order something when he ordered a coke. The invitation put forward, the girls responded by ordering thirty cents worth of coca-cola, lime ade, and sandwiches.

Due to the fact that our boy friend had only thirty-three cents, he ordered a glass of water and lighted another cigarette. When the order came, he handed the waiter three nickels, one dime and five pennies, and placed the remaining three cents in his pocket, feeling lucky that he had escaped the raid with so much tangible

Girl number one drank her coke and arose as if to go thereby causing girl number two to rush with her sandwic hand coke so that she could accompany girl number one to the library

Girl number three choked her limeade when she saw her boy friend enter and rushed over to greet him just as he was preparing to join another girl at the fountain.

The remaining girl was saved by the ten minme bell because she had a class in McVey hall and "I must rush to see Mary about a quiz we are having in psychology tomorrow."

Our boy friend rose, lighted another cigarette, looked at his three cents, glanced at the fleeting figure of the last of the four girls, then slowly strolled out of the Union grill.

A FIER a long period of doubt, it has been decided that law students are human. They are, in fact, almost like other collegians. This point was learned at the Clemson game Saturday when the law students put on one of the best shows yet to be seen, ending once and for all the rumor that they were a strange group of fossils who stayed on at the University because they had nowhere else to go.

For a long time there has been question about this department. Everyone sees them huddled around the law build-ng, conversing in quiet tones about <sup>3</sup> torts, cases, irrevelant points, or habeas corpuses-things of which he ordinary student is ignorant. Their talk runs more to study than parties or dates, and they are known o spend long hours over open books, ften even carrying these books to lass with them.

of the afternoon into amusement. Funny shot-The Cats have the crowd is tense. The cheer leaders exhort the fans to yell for a touchdown, as the team comes out of the huddle and up to the line of scrimmage. In a body, the fans rise to their feet, straining their voices hoping for a score. But the swing band, unperturbed by it all, swings into "Honeysuckle Rose."

Yessir, the lawyers are human.

Last week there ran in this strip squib quoting Dr. Sherwood of the physiology department. This squib, says Dr. Sherwood was erroneous, base, libelous, and generaliy untrue. It read "You're just built that way, girls. Your hips are put together like that. And no matter how many pants you put on, how much you try to be like a man, you're going to wiggle when you walk. That's what makes you

I wish hereby to say that Dr. Sherwood did not say "That's what makes you cute." Just one of my many mistakes. I apologize, Dr. Sherwood, and promise never to do it again, nor ever to criticize Ed Shannon again for bad reporting.

As if our roster of queens wasn't long enough, Saturday night saw the coronation of still another one 'Miss Canary Cottage." Selected after an hilarious ceremony, Do Ann Young now reigns as the bird cage queen for the coming year, whatever that amounts to. In addition to this, Didi Castle and Glenda Burton were acclaimed chief attendants to the Queen. It would seem that the Chio's had a corner on the Canary market; or maybe it was just smart politics. Miss Lillian Gaines Webb, Kappa, was dubbed Miss Main-Spring of

The whole election, of course, was riot. The students threw themseives whole-heartedly into the farce with characteristic exhuberance, clearly showing the carefree nature of the average student. All the Jews may be driven from Nazidom, the market may crash, and the world tremble on the brink of war. It doesn't worry the collegian. He has to elect a queen.

recommendation that next year's tourney be held at the site of their selection. The duty of the executive committee is to then pass on the selections. This is done in their December meeting.

In other words, each tournament is named a year ahead of time. Honexecutive committee to name the place. In light of past successes tie over. and failures. Tennessee was chosen.

There are several strong reasons why Kentucky could have received the nomination had it been asked for the net show: (1) All over the Conference Kentucky is recognized as the basketball hot-bed of the South. This interest is a direct contribution of Coach Adoiph Rupp since his coming here in 1931. (2) Every basketball venture ever tried here has been a financial success. Last year's state high school tourney cleared $5,000 after paying the expenses of 16 teams for the duration of the competition. (3) The original purpose of the tourney was to promote interest in the sport For that reason it does not seem fair to allow one school to dominate the show. Kentucky has never held the eliminations and Tennessee has been so honored in three of the past four years. (4) Had Kentucky asked for the tourney, all the coaches would have received the Idea with open arms; that's how high we rate.

Questions and Answers Why, then you wonder, didn't we ask for the tournament? There are was advisor for the festival. Ray but two reasons: (1) the expense such a venture would necessitate, and (2) the duties as host to 12

The total cost of holding a tournament, now that the loops 13 teams instead of the former top 8 are eligible to com pete, according to Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, executive secretary, would border on $10,000.

Various Angles the high school meeting took in almost $20,000, but look at these angles. The 16 teams entered represented 16 distinct regions, the most remote not more than 350 miles from Lexington. To drive such a distance to follow the home team is not too absurd, but expect fans to traverse such distances from Louisana or Florida and there is a power, spiced with deceptive spin problem.
